

St. Andrew's Tidings

Theologian Douglas John Hall, in his widely read book, The Steward: A Biblical Symbol Come of Age, has written: "Stewardship ...has become the term associated with little more than church management and finances..."

He says, "Instead, charitable giving should be the ultimate goal. Stewardship, itself, should be the summing up of a Christian life." Michael Durall continues that thought when he says that it is all about mission—accomplishing the work of God. "It should be a means by which parishioners strengthen their faith...In attempting to strengthen both faith and mission among members of a congregation, keep in mind a finding from Financing American Religion: Parishioners who give the least are motivated by maintaining the building and the congregation. More generous parishioners believe they are also helping people who are less fortunate, and strengthening their relationship to God." Durall goes on to suggest that the healthy congregation focuses on abundance rather than scarcity.

The exciting thing is the forward movement of our parish. This parish has increased giving from this time last year in the area of $50,000 which is great news. This does not include Living Stones. Our attendance grew greatly from 2013 to 2014. And at this time (September 2015) our attendance has increased by a total of over 500—just from January to August 30th. There is a great deal of mission that goes on here because of these added benefits, but we can do more. Last week I invited you to "Dream big. What could our church do, what should our church do beyond our walls-- to really do what God is calling us to do in order to thank God for being so gracious and loving to us. God has given us our very life and breath!! How will we respond?" Some people did respond! Suggestions included the following:

"We could use the rectory as a jubilee center and have senior citizens activities, perhaps do something with council on aging.

We could do a real outdoor altar and use it for worship without walls, complete with flowers, lighting etc.

We could get a church van to pick up people for night time activities and to take people to Cursillo and conferences.

We could hire a full time sexton and possibly a yard service.

We could replace the church windows facing the Memorial garden and landscape the west side grounds between the church and our grumpy neighbors

We could repair and modernize the sprinkler system.

We could send staff to conferences.

We could have speakers on special topics for WOW.

DREAMING IS FUN!

The best Choir in town (not that it isn't great-we could hire people on some parts)

Grounds that are inviting and lovely

Servant ministry groups that reach all across the city

Senior Citizens ministries"

As you read this, add your own list. You have heard me say over and over, church is not about those of us already on the inside, it is about those who have not yet come through our doors. How will we respond to this? In what ways has the church called each of us to live more spiritual lives? How has our faith manifested itself in church and in the larger world? These are the issues that are integral to creating meaningful religious lives. Our faith commitment is part of the life of the church, woven into what God calls us to do, and how we respond. I hope you take great pride in what you have accomplished!

Many blessings! You are to me!

Namaste'

Ukulele Orchestra of St. Andrew's in Concert

Including A Luau Featuring Heavy hors d'oeuvres and Beverages

Aloha! Many of us have dreamed of traveling to Hawaii and going to a fabulous luau with sumptuous food and drink with the sound of ukuleles playing our favorite songs. Now your chance is right here at St. Andrew's on September 13 for KICK-OFF SUNDAY at 5:30pm. We will be welcoming the St. Andrews Ukulele Orchestra for our September concert in Byrne Hall. So put on your best Hawaiian outfit and sign up to bring some luau style food. Laurie Ayers has lots of ideas for you about fun easy food that you can bring to help make the occasion festive. We have a sign up sheet in on the bulletin board in Byrne Hall. This event will be BYOB.
